Logotype / Logomark / Elements / Usage

Corporate logo

Horizontal

There are two versions of the logo with different alignments to meet different design needs.

On a white or light background always use the positive (blue) version of the logo.

On blue or any dark background always use the negative (white) version of the logo.

The logo should never be used on a vibrant blue background.

For documents that only support black and white, or for special applications like spot varnish, embossing, or engraving, use the black and white version of the logo.

Corporate logo components

Our logo is a combination of the logotype and a graphic “hexagon” mark. Each component is crucial to the logo and must maintain their proper relationship to each other. Altering or removing any component compromises the integrity of the logo and weakens the brand identity.

Under no circumstances should these elements be altered beyond the variations defined in these standards. Specifically, while the mark can be used separately, the logotype should never be used alone and must not be recreated using a font.

The logotype should never be used without the mark

Don't recreate the logotype using a font.

Do not alter the placement of any element within the logo.

Corporate logo thumbnail mark

On a white or light background always use the positive (blue) version of the logo.

On blue or any dark background always use the negative (white) version of the logo.

The logo should never be used on a solid vibrant blue background.

03

Corporate logo incorrect usage

To maintain the integrity of our brand identity, consistent and proper use of the logo components is essential. Avoid making any alterations to the logo, including changes to its color, size, or placement.

When resizing the logo in Microsoft programs, hold down the Shift key to maintain its original proportions.

Don't outline logo

Don't change the colors of the logo

Don't stretch, squeeze or rotate the logo

Corporate logo clear space and minimum size

Clear space

To maintain its prominence and avoid visual clutter, our logo must always be surrounded by clear space equal to x, where x is defined by the height of the word “one” in the logotype. No text, imagery, or graphic elements should enter this clear space zone.

Grid system

In order to maintain consistency and visual integrity, the logo must always retain its original dimensions and proportions.

Minimum size

To ensure legibility and optimal quality, the logo must not be used smaller than 10 mm in height for print or 40 pixels in height for digital applications.

Corporate logo positioning

The horizontal logo performs best when aligned to the left or right edge of the layout.

The centered logo, however, is specifically designed for center alignment and should be used in layouts where a central placement is preferred.

Avoid left or right aligning the centered logo, as this can create visual imbalance.

2025 Colors

Brand color / Usage / Palette

Color palette

Our color palette reflects the vibrancy and energy at the core of the OneNet brand, providing clarity, balance, and structure across all applications. Inspired by both the maritime environment and the digital world of connectivity, Sea Blue and Vibrant Blue together form our primary colors, expressing trust and innovation.

Supporting colors include White, and Gray, which ensure contrast, legibility, and visual consistency.

A gradient transitioning between Sea Blue and Vibrant Blue is used as a supporting visual element, symbolizing connection, movement, and data exchange.

When applied consistently, this palette creates a cohesive and flexible visual system suitable for both print and digital communications.

Image / Icons / Communication / Promotion

Photography

Imagery tells the story of our industry, people, and expertise through clear, confident compositions that avoid feeling overproduced.

We aim for a warm, natural, and candid feel in our imagery, avoiding overly loud or complex colors. Our visuals should always be modern and contemporary in appearance.

Whether capturing original photos or selecting stock images, our visuals should share common attributes that ensure high quality and a cohesive, consistent look.

Iconography

Our icons, designed with a unique visual language and specificity and are used at a small scale in our interface, giving them distinct character.

We use icons to guide our audiences through our communications. Icons serve as visual signposts, providing context and indicating important information for readers.

Our icons need to be professionally designed, crisp, and modern. When creating icons, ensure they are relevant and enhance the content of the communication.

Only use icons in outline format, with thin one color lines and without any fill. Avoid gradients and drop shadows.

Stationery

Motto

Our core motto, “One network. One vision. One future.”, expresses the foundation of the OneNet brand. It reflects our commitment to building unified, reliable networks that connect people, technologies, and ideas under a shared strategic vision.

The motto speaks to collaboration and long-term thinking—bringing together infrastructure, innovation, and expertise to create sustainable digital ecosystems. It represents our belief that strong networks enable progress, shared purpose, and a connected future built on trust, resilience, and continuity.
